Children are especially at risk in times of disaster. These children had been living in a tent since the floods took their home away, along with everything else they had owned. As a beneficiary of the Pakistan Settlements Flood recovery Project funded by the government of Japan, the family of 5 has joined in with other members of the community in Azizabad, Charsadda, to build not only their shelter but also help others build theirs.

Now their shelter is completed. The children march happily from their tent to their new home. Inside the shelter, they put a shelf and colorfully decorated it with silverware and cloths.
